Re: Chemical Recovery Systems Site
McGean Worldwide, Inc.'s Response to General Notice of Liability Letter

Dear Ms. Watts:

Baker Hostetler has been retained by McGean to represent it in connection with the Superfund Site known as the Chemical Recovery Systems Site in Elyria, Ohio (the CRS Site). This letter is McGean's response to the July 18, 2008 General Notice of Potential Liability letter that was received on July 25, 2008. McGean is currently investigating its connection to the CRS Site and is preparing a response to the Request For Information. Without admitting liability and reserving all rights, if this investigation confirms that McGean has a nexus to the CRS Site and may have potential liability, McGean would work with other Potentially Responsible Parties (PRPs) and the U.S. EPA to address issues at the CRS Site.

Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, I am hereby requesting any information regarding McGean's connection to the CRS Site and the basis for U.S. EPA's position that McGean may have potential liability at the CRS Site. Please forward this information as well as all other correspondence regarding this matter to my attention at:
